Incorporated in Connecticut in 1981 as a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization according to Internal Revenue Service regulations, the International Association for Near-Death Studies, Inc. (IANDS) mission is to respond to needs for information and support concerning near-death and similar experiences. IANDS' goals are:

- ◇ To encourage thoughtful exploration of all facets of near-death and similar experiences;
- ◇ To provide reliable information about such experiences to experiencers, caregivers, researchers, and the public;
- ◇ To serve as a contact point and community for people with particular interest in near-death and similar experiences.

IANDS maintains no "party line" on the interpretation of near-death or similar experiences and is open to the presentation of varying responsible points of view. The Association is committed to scholarly investigation of the NDE and to providing accurate information based on those findings.

IANDS publishes two quarterly periodicals, the scholarly Journal of Near-Death Studies and the newsletter Vital Signs, in addition to other informational materials. It sponsors a national conference in North America annually and other conferences occasionally.
